LONDON, MAY 6.

Goree, on the coast of Africa, is said to be taken by the English.

On application from the American consul-general in France, to the minister of the marine, April 23, relative to the iniquitous condemnation of two vessels of the United States, the minister answered, that the United States must break their treaty with Great Britain, (Before the French will behave honestly.)

Some parts of the English and United States treaty, affecting the navigation act passed in the reign of Charles II. parliament are considering of an expedient for rendering them compatible.

The king of Prussia's life is despaired of.

Admiral Pringle has taken two Spanish Manilla ships valued at 120,000l.

MAY 9.

The last accounts from Ireland are of the most alarming nature. It is said the Irish have sent delegates into Scotland, to unite the people there with them. We are also told they have sent delegates to France. In the North they learn the use of fire-arms at midnight. The gentry are afraid of living on their estates, and retire into the fortresses of Londonderry, Carrickfergus, &c. A part of the military is said to participate in the feelings of the United Irishmen. The people of the North are not yet in open rebellion, but we fear Mr. Beresford will soon be gratified in that respect, for every circumstance gives reason to apprehend it, and the obstinacy of the harsh measures of the government most of all.

A person expressing his surprise that the taking of Kehl should have occupied the Austrians seven weeks, and the French only five hours; a master carpenter accounted for this extraordinary fact, by supposing the Austrians were paid by the day, and the French by the job.

How different is Mr. Pitt's language from that of our prayer books! there we say, "Lighten our darkness, we beseech thee, good Lord," while the minister introduces his stamps upon newspapers, for the express purpose of darkening our lights; but the hour of ignorance is happily past in this country, and no infamous artifice of a profligate minister can prevent us from walking in the Sun.

MAY 11

The naval delegates, Evans and Joyce, were it seems, the joint movers of the late mutiny: the former was a pettyfogging attorney, struck off the rolls for various malpractices amongst his wrapping clients: the latter, a tobacconist of Belfast in Ireland, shipped on board a tender, with many others, by the order of lord Carhampton, for his seditious harrangues.—Sun.

MAY 13.

Our accounts from Portsmouth this morning state, that earl Howe landed on board the fleet yesterday afternoon, where order was perfectly re-established. His lordship, we understand to have reported that he found things, upon his first going on board, much better than he expected, and that they were now as well as he could wish. The ships had their sails loose yesterday, as the signal for sailing, but the wind was unfortunately adverse.

PORTSMOUTH, MAY 11.

The diabolical spirit in the fleet has been kept up, it is confidently said, by some infernal villains on shore, it being now discovered that very few of the seamen were really disaffected. On board some of the three-decked ships, not more than ten; in others, not exceeding thirty. I have just learned that the seamen of the Mars have themselves fixed on one of their crew to be tried by a court-martial, for inflaming their minds by false assertions. On board the Royal Sovereign, the king's proclamation was nailed to the mast; some infernal scoundrel cut out God save the King; the seamen have offered fifty guineas reward for the discovery, and swear they will hang the man the instant he is detected.

BELFAST, APRIL 28.

"Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither fruit be in the vines; the late flour of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flocks shall be cut off from the fold, there shall be no herd in the stall, yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation."

Though the people are goaded almost to madness—though the bayonet has been substituted for law—though many have been banished, and though our best citizens are entombed in dungeons or draged on board the fleet:—yet let us rejoice—for the night of darkness is almost past—the dawn already appears in the east, and a glorious day approaches: The last and final effort of despotism has taken place, and will like all the preceeding steps of that enemy to the human race fail of its effects. Neither bars, nor bolts, nor dungeons, nor even death, will terrify the true Irishman—he will remain true to his cause, amid the most untoward and alarming appearances, convinced that the Allpowerful Being, which gave him life, will crown with success, the cause of freedom.

DUBLIN, APRIL 28.

More shocking scenes of human misery never wounded the sight of man, than are to be seen at this instant in that part of the metropolis which is called the Earl of Meath's liberty, but which better accords with the idea of a cemetery filled with human degeneracy and decay in all its stages. More than 14,000 souls there languish, the emaciated victims of famine, many of them waiting the hour of dissolution, which is to send them after their friends and relations. And by the same way. To this dreadful state of complete destruction has the operation of war reduced an industrious race of people, who had been taught to depend upon manufacture for subsistence.

FROM THE NORTHERN STAR.

[The manly, dignified, and energetic sentiments contained in the following address cannot fail to prove highly gratifying to every admirer of fine writing—nor less pleasing to all the friends of civil liberty. The oppression which has driven a brave and loyal people to the adoption of this language, needs no comment of ours to point it out to the execration and detestation of the great family of mankind.]

ARMAGH, APRIL 19.

At a numerous meeting of the nobility, clergy, and freeholders of the county of Armagh, convened by requisition of Robert Barnard Sparrow, Esq. high sheriff, the following address to his Majesty was moved by James Stewart, and seconded by Joshua Mageough, Esquires, and carried almost unanimously; there was, however, one solitary protest, namely, that of Mr. Ogle, of Fathom Lodge, late high sheriff.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

SIRE,

IN the moment of calamity, in the hour of impending distress, the inhabitants of the county of Armagh, in the kingdom of Ireland, with reverence approach the throne to express their sentiments of the highest respect and affection for your Majesty's person, their unalterable attachment to the true principles of the British constitution, and to solicit you to avert from the empire that total ruin, in which a war of unexampled ferocity and misfortune has almost irretrievably involved a brave and loyal people.

With astonishment we have beheld your majesty's ministers obstinately persisting in a vain contest, which hath already spread through Europe misery and devastation. At home, Sire, their conduct has been marked with greedy exaction, with avaricious and insatiable rapacity; and abroad, they have manifested a prodigality unlimited and an incapacity almost incredible.

When they first rashly precipitated the nation into this unprincipled war, they boldly predicted the destruction of the French republic, and French political principles, the extension of our own commerce, and a lasting and glorious peace.

Instead of realizing these golden dreams, they have, by external pressure, consolidated the heterogeneous parts of the French republic, into one solid and indissoluble body. They have disseminated French principles, with a rapidity proportioned to their efforts for exterminating them, and having ruined our commerce, loaded us with enormous taxes, and mocked us with delusive hopes of peace, they seem determined to wage an endless war, without resources, and without any clear and defined object.

Under the guidance of these men, the power of the British empire has been diminished, and its glory and honor destroyed—perhaps forever. They found us in the possession of a commerce, co-extensive with the world; of resources which they themselves boasted were inexhaustible; and of allies whole combined powers they considered as irresistible. Their boundless prodigality has dissipated these resources; their infatuation has estranged our allies; our commerce has dwindled into insignificance, and our public credit, blasted at their inauspicious touch, has shrunk into non existence.

Your majesty's subjects of the kingdom of Ireland, bear not only a portion of those calamities, under which the constitution totters and the whole empire groans, but labor under distresses and miseries peculiar to themselves.

We complain, Sire, that the British constitution is enjoyed by us in name only. The English cabinet is the real sufficient power which guides, directs, and actuates the Irish government. Through their influence, laws are capriciously enacted and repealed; under their guidance, a system of organized corruption has established itself; their measures are carried into effect, not by arguments drawn from reason and policy, but by the efforts of venality frontless and unblushing; coercive laws are made and penalties inflicted, altogether disproportionate to the alledged offences; the people are goaded to madness by accumulated miseries and oppression, and if they sigh or murmur, the sigh is treason, and the murmur death. The convention bill has taken from your majesty's subjects even the right to complain, the last sad refuge of distrest and suffering humanity. An enemy, powerful and full of animosity, has appeared on our coasts; and in the moments of distress, our government manifested itself impotent and incapable of protecting the people; yet when the winds had providentially prevented the invasion, it prepared not to resist the returning foe, but to alienate the affections of the people, by despoiling them of their only protection—their arms.

Your subjects, Sire, are daily committed to prison, under the insurrection act, for frivolous pretexts; and, that one cruelty may be superadded to another, the habeas corpus act has been suspended, and innocent and unoffending men confined without hope of trial, liberation, or redress. The richest and most opulent province in this kingdom, has been, in defiance of truth and justice, stigmatized and illegally treated, as in a state of insurrection; our most useful citizens torn from their families and dearest connections, are, without trial by jury, dragged to the fleet like the most atrocious felons: and military coercion has taken place of common law.

Sire, we humbly submit to your consideration, that if your people were fairly and adequately represented in parliament, most of these evils would have been prevented in their very origin.

In this kingdom, three-fourths of your majesty's loyal people are aliens to many of the blessings of the constitution. The Roman Catholics exist under restrictions hostile to the common rights of mankind, and disgraceful to the age in which we live. Your majesty's ministers, Sire, ungenerously taking advantage of those restrictions, have too long propagated amongst us religious animosities, and the fiery persecutions of merciless bigotry. Against these men, at this moment, Sire, Irishmen of every religious persuasion, lift up their voice with one accord. We arraign them of crimes at which humanity shudders, and from which christianity turns an abhorrent eye. Of these enormities we accuse them before our king, in the face of the world, and in the presence of God. For these reasons, Sire, we pray your majesty to aid your people in reforming the parliament, in emancipating the catholics, and to dismiss your present ministers from your councils for ever.

The address having been agreed to, it was resolved, that William Brownlow and William Richardson, esquires, should present it to the lord lieutenant, to be by him transmitted to his Majesty.

The thanks of the meeting were then unanimously given to Robert Barnard Sparrow, esquire, for his proper conduct in the chair.

It is with pleasure we add, that the business was conducted with the greatest propriety and decorum.

ADDRESS

From a respectable meeting of the county of Armagh, to such of their Roman Catholic brethren as have been driven from their country by the late persecution.

FRIENDS, BRETHREN, & FELLOW CITIZENS,

IN this unhappy country, the designing emissaries of a venal and profligate administration, have with impunity too long scattered amongst us, the seeds of disunion and religious persecution; they saw, that if the people were once united in the bonds of social love and affection, that system of corruption, which they have substituted for the pure spirit of the constitution, would have perished FOR EVER.

Hence brethren, they adopted the diabolical maxim divide et impera—In their hands the religion of the most high God, the spirit of which is peace, and love, and union, and social order, has become the instrument of discord and bigotry; of persecution, bloody and relentless.

We lament, that infatuation, that misguided and ill judged zeal, which drove from their inhabitants many of our most useful citizens, and rendered our country odious to the world. From this moment, we wish to bury for ever all religious contentions, and all animosities that may seperate us from our fellow citizens.

In the union of love, in the spirit of universal benevolence, we invite you that are now forlorn and friendless wanderers through the kingdom, to return to your habitations. We promise you protection in the exercise of the unalienable rights of man. Your tyrants, abhorred by the community, and skulking from the avenging eye of an injured people, have lost the power to molest you.

At your return you will find us united as one man, and ready to receive, without religious distinctions, our countrymen into an holy and exalted compact

Our aim is to procure a reform in parliament,-and catholic emancipation; and to the attainment of these grand objects, our progress shall be moderate, yet firm; temperate, yet irresistable.

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 30.

By the Jane, Capt. Fitch from Londonderry, which sailed from thence the 15th of May, and arrived in the river last evening, we have advices and papers down to the date of her departure.—The lateness of the hour has precluded the publication of details, but the general complexion of the advices as they are furnished by the Northern Star, and the information of passengers, give a positive confirmation of the convulsed state of that unfortunate country, and the approach of a general civil war.

The society called United Irishmen, it appears has spread its branches through the whole country, and so effectually overturned the force of religious distinctions, as to place the influence of the clergy of the Romish church, as well as others, in a state of utter disregard, property, real and personal, has sunk one third of its value two years ago, and the desire to sell is checked only by the want of money, by which persons more hardy, possessed of property are prevented from purchasing.

The lord lieutenant had summoned the heads of the Romish clergy of the southern provinces to Dublin in order to learn if the dependence that was expected could be placed on their several congregations; and it appears that Dr. M. the Bishop of Cork, has declared that the people of the poorer classes have been so much corrupted by the modern politics, and by the United Irishmen, as to place the spiritual authority in utter disregard. This club was designated by a green scarf or handkerchief, the wearing of which is prohibited by the government.

We have been favored with the following extract of a letter, and are promised a statement of the number of the club of United Irishmen, and of the arms in their possession, as appears by the returns lately seized in the head provincial club of Ulster, the records of which and the delegates were seized—it appears that they held a correspondence with the British fleet, and had delegates on board who acted in concert with them; perhaps much of the late mutiny may be in some degree attributed to their machinations.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Londonderry, to his friend in this city, dated 12th May, 1797.

"I thank you for Liancourt's account of your city prison; it reflects vast honor on the wisdom and philanthropy of the citizens of Philadelphia—I wish it were possible to impress our rulers with a similar idea of good policy and true humanity. But alas! their ears are not tuned to the vibration of such strings, for the same crooked policy, the same despotic maxims, which for centuries past have divided, distracted, impoverished, and now have bathed this ill fated country, still continue their poisonous and baneful operations with redoubled rage; of this furious rage, our once industrious, flourishing, free-minded province, (Ulster) is the devoted victim, and our principal support, the linen manufactory, is almoſt annihilated—The terrors of military execution have produced a ſeemingly temporary calm—but it is that ſort of calm which precedes the tempeſt, that awful taciturnity ſo well deſcribed by the Roman hiſtorian—"It is not peace, it is not war, it is the gloomy ſilence of ſullen terror and rankling reſentment." If in this condition we are invaded, we are extinguiſhed, if not invaded, we may ſurvive—but in ſlavery."

Alexandria, July 6.

Tueſday laſt the Citizens of Alexandria commemorated the natal day of American Independence, with the conviviality and friendly gaiety with which they have hitherto diſtinguiſhed its returning Anniverſary.

There were ſeveral different places of rendezvous to celebrate the day—at thoſe of Independent Spring and Mr. Abert's Tavern the following toaſts were drank:

1. This happy day, and all who honor it.
2. The Preſident of the United States.
3. The Vice-Preſident of the United States.
4. The Congreſs of the United States now in ſeſſion—May coolneſs in debate, wiſdom and firmneſs in deciſion, mark their councils, and may peace be the order of the day.—Three Cheers.
5. Our illuſtrious Fellow-Citizen, George Waſhington—May the remembrance of his paſt ſervices never be eraſed from the hearts of his grateful countrymen.—Nine Cheers.
6. To the memory of thoſe departed heroes who ſealed our Independence with their blood—Whilſt we taſte the fruits of their labours, may we never be tempted, Eſau like, to ſell our birthright for a meſs of pottage.
7. The Governor and Commonwealth of Virginia.
8. The American people—While they know how to defend the Rights of Man, may they not forget to pay a due regard to a government of their own choice—6 cheers.
9. The Agriculture, Manufactures, and Commerce of the United States.
10. The American Flag—May our commerce furniſh the means of ſupporting an honorable neutrality, or of puniſhing when neceſſary, all unwarrantable inſults.
11. The Conſtitution of the United States.
12. Our three Envoys Extraordinary to the French Republic—Health to their perſons, Succeſs to their Negociations, and let all the people ſay Amen!
13. The Trade and Navigation of the Potomac—May it flouriſh as long as water runs or the Alleghany mountain ſtands.
14. The Fair Daughters of Columbia.
15. Our Brethren, the great Family of Mankind—May they look on America, behold her good works, and go and do likewiſe.
16. The Liberty of the Preſs—May it never degenerate into a vehicle for perſonal or licentious abuſe, or become the tools of tyranny.

TOASTS DRANK AT MR. ABERT'S.

1. The Day and all who honor it.
2. The memory of thoſe who bled in ſupport of American Independence.
3. May the unanimity and virtue of '76 be an example to thoſe of the preſent day.
4. GEORGE WASHINGTON—May paſt ſervices live in the memory of Americans.
5. The Preſident of the United States.
6. The Vice Preſident of the U. States.
7. May our cannon ſpeak the voice of the people, if Congreſs will not.
8. The infant fleet of America.
9. May the United States act juſtly to, and independent of all foreign nations.
10. Our Miniſters Extraordinary—May they ſoon reſtore a good underſtanding between France and America.
11. The Commerce of the United States.
12. The health and ſpeedy liberation of the MARQUIS LA FAYETTE, and fair family.
13. Mr. Ames.
14. Proſperity of Alexandria.
15. The Navigation of Potomac.
16. The American Fair.

Captain Stanley, of the ſchooner Adeline, arrived at Baltimore in 12 days from Gonaives, informs that the French made an attack on St. Mark, the 2d. ult, with 16,000 men, but were repulſed with the loſs of 2000 killed. The French had previouſly attacked and carried a fort at a diſtance from the town, and put every man (150 in number) to the ſword—— There were in the principal fort that guarded the place but 300 men, who would have met the ſame fate, had it not happened, luckily for them, that two frigates unexpectedly put into harbour that night, and made diſpoſitions to flank the French on both ſides, when they ſhould attack the town. At the riſing of the moon the enemy marched up to attack the fort, certain of as complete a victory as they had obtained the day before; nor had they any knowledge of their danger, until they found themſelves wedged almoſt flank and rear by the frigates, which opened a tremendous and deadly fire upon them—and they found themſelves obliged to make a precipitate retreat to ſave themſelves from inevitable deſtruction. Captain Smith diſtinctly heard the firing during the whole aſſault at Gonaives, to which place the French returned after the failure of the expedition, before he ſailed.

How ſublime and beautiful is the language of Bruce, the Abyſſinian traveller, alluding to the commerce between Aſia and Europe!

"God makes uſe of the ſmalleſt means and cauſes to operate the greateſt and moſt powerful effects. In His hand a PEPPER CORN is the foundation of the power, glory, and riches of India; he makes an ACORN, and by it communicates power and riches to nations divided from India by thouſands of leagues of ſea.

FROM EUROPE.

BOSTON, JUNE 28.

Capt. Freeman arrived here laſt night in 37 days from Bourdeaux. By him we received French papers down to May 18, but they contain no news of importance, except numerous confirmations of Peace, which is ſpoken of as a general one.—Indeed the French Legiſlature were contemplating the ceſſation of thoſe laws which were to expire on the epoch of a general peace!

The intelligence from Europe by the arrivals ſince our laſt, is important. Diveſting it of excreſcences, we have this day given it in its naked form and figure. The deſire of peace has been reciprocal in Auſtria and France; and the outlines have poſitively been traced, A general pacification will be the reſult, and that in the courſe of this ſummer. England will give up the greater part, if not all, her conqueſts in both the Indies;—and ſome proviſion it is expected will be made in favour of the Prince of Orange in return. Berne will become the theatre of diplomatic intrigue, and part of what has been loſt in the field may be acquired in the cabinet. The mutiny on board the Britiſh fleet has been alarming and has been appeaſed at much expenſe.

BRISTOL, MAY 15.

We moſt heartily rejoice and congratulate our readers and our country, at the probable happy termination of the diſcontents of the ſeamen on board the fleet at Portſmouth; and we truſt, that although the brave Britiſh Tars, ſo long and ſo juſtly the pride of this nation and the envy of others, have been betrayed by the wilfull miſrepreſentations of artful and wicked men, to deviate from that due ſubordination, which for ages has rendered them ſo formidable to our enemies, and made them idolized at home; they will ſpeedily return to that duty they owe to their king and country, and, under the command of thoſe gallant and veteran officers, who have ſo often led them into the paths of honor and glory, again and again convince the Foes of Old England, that her Wooden Walls, not only built, but officered and manned, by True Hearts of Oak, will always prove invincible.

LONDON, MAY 12.

The mutiny on board the fleet, we are happy to learn, by the lateſt accounts, has again completely ſubſided, in conſequence of the ſailors being aſſured of the prompt proceeding of parliament in their favor, and of his Majeſty's pardon being again granted; the fleet has ſailed.

Admiral Colpoys has been tried by a tribunal inſtituted by the ſeamen, the verdict of which is to the following effect—"That in every part of his late conduct on board the London man of war, he conducted himſelf as became a Britiſh officer; he is therefore free to re-aſſume the command of his ſhip, or decline it, as he thinks proper." Every thing is amicably ſettled. 572,000l. is the additional ſum which the late demands of the ſeamen amount to.

FROM A FRENCH PAPER—MAY 6.

The Reducteur has publiſhed a letter from the Miniſter of Juſtice of the Conſul-General of the United States of America, dated on the 23d April, in reply to a letter from the American Conſul, who proteſted againſt the decree of confiſcation of two ſhips of his nation, pronounced by the Commercial Tribunals of Boulogne ſur Mer, on the ground that they had neither letter of marque, nor certificate, from the United States,

The reply of our miniſter is couched in negative terms, and concludes thus:

"Let your Government, returned to a ſenſe of what is due to itſelf and to its true friends, become juſt and grateful, and let it break the incomprehenſible treaty, which on the 19th Nov. 1794, it concluded with our moſt implacable enemies, and then the French Republic will ceaſe to take advantage of this treaty, which favors England at its expenſe; and no appeals will then, I aſſure you, be made to any tribunal againſt injuſtice.

(Signed) MERLIN."

"P. S. I think it my duty to inform you, that the Executive Directory authorizes me to addreſs a copy of this letter to the Tribunals of the Maritime Department."

Three Hundred Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscribers three negroes, viz. CHARLES, SCIPIO, and SAM.——Charles is a bright mulatto, 5 feet 10 inches high, 34 years of age, high nose, bushy streight hair, simple, or rather silly look, stammers when he speaks, has on the small of his back large dark marks resembling chocolate, and a large scar on one of his ankles. This fellow ran away in August, 1794. Whoever brings him to me at Colchester, shall have one hundred dollars reward.

PETER WAGENER.

SCIPIO is a dark negro, 5 feet 7 inches high, 25 years of age has a forward impertinent look, a scar over one of his eyes, remarkably small ears, is fond of strong drink and dress, a ship caulker and rough carpenter by trade. This fellow absconded in June 1794—his mother lives with Mr. Street, tavernkeeper, in Norfolk.

SAM is a dark mulatto, 20 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches high, stout and well made, large full eyes, thick lips, speaks quick, frowns, and contracts his brows when he speaks, is a good distiller. His father lives with Dr. Jenifer, Port-Tobacco. This fellow ran away with a fellow of the Rev. Joseph Simpson's on the 28th April last who was born in St. Mary's county, Maryland. One hundred and fifty dollars reward will be paid for Scipio, and fifty dollars for Sam if brought to me at Mount Air.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber on the 26th inst. a slave named JACOB. He is a small, slender fellow about 25 years of age, of a dark mulatto complexion, somewhat knock-kneed, has a large mouth, and chews tobacco to excess, is very sprightly and engaging in his manner. Carried with him a mixed country cloth coat, a striped calico waistcoat, and a pair of half worn boots with their tops turned down, and several other cloaths that I do not remember. I am apprehensive he is lurking about Alexandria, as he was seen a few days ago near the turnpike gate with a pig, turkey, and several other stolen articles. I will give the above reward to any person who will deliver him to me, or ten dollars for securing him in some goal so that I get him again.

RAN AWAY from the subscribers last March, two likely negro women, who are sisters; they call themselves in their petition, NANCY, and CHLOE CURTIN.

NAN is a lusty, bold looking negro, 21 years of age, of a dingy cast, but no ways like a mulatto; was taken up in Alexandria, last November, but made her escape. Since her last elopement, I understand she returned to town, and had a son.

CHLOE is tall and very black, 19 years of age, has a down look, and of few words, only when spoken to. Any person that will bring them home or secure them in gaol so that I get them again, shall have Two Dollars for Nan and her child, and Six Dollars for Chloe, who is also said to be in Alexandria. Any person or persons that hires or harbors the above negroes or either of them, shall be dealt with as the law directs.
